Our purpose

Objects of the Institute of Directors' Royal Charter

To promote for the public benefit high levels of skill, knowledge, professional competence and integrity on the part of directors, and equivalent office holders however described, of companies and other organisations.

To represent the interests of members and of the business community to government and in the public arena, and to encourage and foster a climate favourable to entrepreneurial activity and wealth creation.

To promote the study, research and development of the law and practice of Corporate Governance, and to publish, disseminate or otherwise make available the useful results of such study or research.

To advance the interests of members of the Institute, and to provide facilities, services and benefits for them.

the people making decisions that touch your world

Three powerful personas

We are a community

We are an authority

A network of peers exchanging knowledge, learning together and supporting each other

The source of knowledge and expertise for everything company directors need to know
